ENSURING GFO'S FUTURE

A MESSAGE FROM GFO'S PRESIDENT, LAUREL SMITH

A friend gave me a copy of "An open letter to genealogy societies" that was posted last April in an online blog. I noticed that No. 1 on the list of frustrations was titled "Hoarding money." This entry raised some good points about some ways that societies could use their "extra" money to better meet members' needs, including book purchases, paying for record digitization, and paying for speakers. This commentary, together with a recent example of a GFO volunteer referring to GFO's savings as a "slush fund," reveals what I believe is a misconception and I want to explain.

Genealogy societies like GFO continue to face many diverse and emerging challenges. These include broad societal shifts such as changing demographics and an ever-increasing reliance on personal electronic devicesto gain access to information. The costs of everything – rent, paper, utilities, maintenance, repair and replacement costs, etc. – continue to rise. During recessions, membership can become an unaffordable luxury for many as incomes decrease. Donations as well as other revenue streams that support our organization can also dwindle. Fortunately, GFO is blessed with a cadre of devoted volunteers that help keep the Library's doors open and the organization functioning. Among these volunteers is GFO's Board of Directors.

GFO's Board members have a legal responsibility for considering and making many kinds of decisions on behalf of GFO's interests, including financial management.

Yes, the GFO has savings, slowly accumulated over many years of careful monthly spending and investment. And yes, I am proud of that fact, as it is better than the alternative of facing a fiscal crisis – or worse. Many members don't know that TriMet contributed significantly to GFO's moving costs, as a result of being displaced from the Gideon Street location due to the Orange Line light rail line construction. TriMet's generous assistance with our unforeseen move together with careful spending has put GFO in the enviable position of having savings.

Some non-profit organizations create and maintain a "rainy day" or "emergency" fund, typically referred to as an "Operating Reserve." Others take steps to budget, save, and solicit enough money to create one. A reserve fund is a specially designated account set aside by the organization's board to help stabilize an organization's finances by providing a cushion for planned or unplanned future expense or loss. Just like household savings, set-aside funds can help assure a greater degree of financial stability and are tapped only when necessary for their designated purpose.

The GFO Board is currently discussing creation of a reserve fund and adopting a policy regarding its use. How much is enough? The National Council of Nonprofits' general guidelines call for between two and six months' operating expenses, but they caution that settling on the right figure depends on a number of factors. GFO is a unique organization and the Board will need to carefully consider what vulnerabilities and potential challenges it could encounter. Having a reserves fund will put GFO in a more stable position to face future known and unknown challenges.

Why not tap GFO's endowment fund if needed? That would be unwise. Even in the case of an emergency, use of the endowment fund is limited to ten percent and would be in the form of a loan. GFO would be obligated to pay back every penny, with interest included, and any use for intangible items or services would violate the intended purpose of the endowment fund.

GFO has much to be proud of. With a strategic advantage of being the largest genealogical library between San Francisco and Seattle, the GFO remains strong, unlike some other similar societies. And it is run entirely by a dedicated group of volunteers with an eye towards cost efficiency and bringing value to its membership. Our library and other research resources continue to grow, in significant part due to generous donations and carefully considered acquisitions. This year GFO purchased a new film scanner and a new on-line subscription service, HistoryGeo. Last year a special scanner was purchased to enable data digitization of our manuscript collection. We continue to survey members to ask for feedback, and continue to research and evaluate other potential acquisitions, so stay tuned! It is my belief that with careful planning and stewardship GFO can continue to have a solid future for many years to come.

Library Closures Holiday Hours at the GFO Library

We're entering the winter season, and hours at the library will change for Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year's holidays. The library will close early – at 1 pm – the day before and remain closed all day of the holiday. Also, in case of inclement weather, be sure to call the GFO before heading in to make sure the library is open.

Webmaster Retires

Larry Sullivan

Larry volunteered to take over the Webmaster position about seven years ago when the original webmaster stepped down. He has turned the site into one that has been recognized as one of the best genealogical sites in the U.S., receiving Family Tree Magazine's award for Best State Genealogy Website for the last three years. He has also optimized it for mobile use and provided links to many other websites, making our site a valuable online research resource. Thank you, Larry, for many years of dedicated service to the GFO.

* * * Wanted: Webmaster * * *

In development: Be point-of-contact to assist with non-coding web updates. For the upcoming new website: Keep up with emailed requests for website updates, input data or news, and creatively keep the public and members informed about what's going on at the GFO.

Contact us at info@gfo.org for more information. Training is included.

Oregon Vital Records Friday Morning Work Crew

"The Friday Morning Work Crew currently includes Eileen Chamberlin, Roger Edwards, Diane O'Dell, and Diana Smith and is headed by Loretta Welsh. The group has been quietly compiling information from the Oregon Vital Records that all researchers look for (birth, marriage, death, and divorce). The information is checked, indexed and made available to GFO members. Thanks to all the current and former members who have been involved in this data extraction group since 2002!"

* * * Want to nominate a Star? * * *

Has someone gone the extra mile? Helped you solve a knotty problem? Given the GFO more than we could expect? There's a star for them. Complete a nomination form and submit it in the box near the front door at the GFO Library.

Your Donations at Work

Researchers at the GFO Library are enjoying significantly faster internet speeds due to a recent shift to Comcast. We also changed our phone service so we can now return calls to members who would previously have required long distance calling—which we did not have.

We heard you! Attending classes in the back of the library used to mean coming early for the best seats—close to the screen so you could see. A new LARGE projection screen has been purchased and installed and visibility is much better.

MISSING

BOOKS CASSETTES PERIODICALS

Last Seen: GFO Library Portland, Oregon

As our volunteers work to reclassify and re-catalog the various collections at the GFO Library, we see that many items are missing. Some have been checked out and never returned. Others have just disappeared. In the Northwest Schools Collection alone, thirteen items are missing, and these have always been reserved books—not something that can be checked out of the Library. Our library books and materials are at the core of the GFO. We want our resources back!

November is Return Amnesty Month!

Please bring back any GFO materials you might have.

No late fees. No questions asked.

HELP US PLEASE

Volunteer Opportunities

® Research Assistant and Receptionists

Now that summer is over, vacations have been taken, and children are back in school, please consider giving a little bit of your time to the GFO. We need as much help as we can get to keep the library open seven days a week. There are vacancies that need to be filled as an RA (Research Assistant/Receptionist). No prior experience is needed ... we will train you on the job. Our most urgent need currently is Wednesday and Thursday afternoons.

If you're interested, please contact Cathy Lauer at volunteer@gfo.org or call the reception desk. 503-963-1932, and leave a message.

80 Membership Assistant Needed

As the GFO's membership grows, we need to make sure everyone is continually accounted for in our membership database. Volunteering as a Membership Assistant is an opportunity to become an expert at data transfers, data entry, and database research.

We're looking for you! Yes, you, with the excellent typing skills and incessant attention to detail. Training is included, and once completed most Membership Assistants can work on their own at any time during Library hours. This is also a great chance for students to add yet another impressive tool onto the resume. Contact Jane McGarvin at membership@gfo.org.

80 Manuscripts Scanners Needed

Volunteer opportunities include organizing and relabeling the paper files, scanning, pulling metadata from the collections, and researching the history of the collections' authors and/or highlighted families. To reach our goal of fully digitizing our over 100 manuscript collections and indexing all 28 of our family bibles will take many hands, and the truth is that volunteers like you are invaluable.

If you would just love to look through old documents of family histories and help to preserve all of this irreplaceable historical content, please contact either Nanci Remington or LauraDenise White at manuscripts@gfo.org.

Invitation to Discover the GFO

Speakers for Your Group or Tours of the Library

Do you participate in a group or club that might like to learn about the GFO? We have speakers who would love to attend one of your meetings to give a presentation about our resources and provide one-time visitor passes to our research library. Your group could also visit the GFO for a free tour and our Introduction to Genealogy or Introduction to GFO Resources presentation. Any school, youth group, social club, resident association, religious group, or hobby club is invited to request a speaker for their gathering or to contact the GFO for a visit. Recently, we hosted the Rose City Model A Club. All groups are welcome.

Need more info about presentations? Send an email to education@gfo.org. For more information or to schedule a tour email tours@gfo.org.

Tuberculosis: The Forgotten Plague

http://video.pbs.org/video/2365422268/

With an historical death rate of up to one-fourth of the populace, tuberculosis was one of the worst diseases to hit a family. It was highly contagious and little understood until the early twentieth century. You may see it listed as a cause of death under other terms: consumption, phthisis or phthisis pulmonalis. For a view of the impact of tuberculosis on society, medicine, and even the settling of the west, check out The Forgotten Plague. It's free and available online

See Your Article in Print!

The Bulletin, GFO's quarterly magazine is your publication. The editors hope you enjoy reading it, and we want to invite you to submit your family story, genealogy essay, or research report for publication. It is a great way to make sure your family's history is preserved and available to others in the future. And you will be able to pass your published article around at the next family gathering!

The magazine publishes a wide range of material including memoirs and personal essays, problem-solving articles, research articles and source guides, articles about family history travel, how-to articles, using technology, book reviews, and transcriptions or extractions from original sources.

General guidelines can be viewed here, but don't let anything you see here discourage you. Be brave! Our friendly team of editors will help you get your article in shape, assuring that you (and the GFO) will look good. If you have an idea for an article, but are not sure if it's a good one, pitch it to the editors.

Send articles, ideas, and questions to Marti Dell and Laurel Smith at Bulletin@gfo.org.

NEW! Film Scanner Workstation

Liz Stepp

If you've been in the library lately, you may have noticed the new film scanner sitting next to a computer and tall monitor screen. For a few weeks now, the new scanner – purchased through generous member donations – has been up and running.

The scanner workstation's components work together: the computer with the software program installed, the monitor to view and select from the software menus and manipulate the images, and the film reader and scanner itself. To use the scanner, the computer is turned on first. It may look intimidating to some, but I found it easy to use as I explored the microfiche "Townlands of Ireland" kept in the microfiche cabinet now located beside this workstation. Also at the workstation are a nicely illustrated quick start overview guide and a more indepth step-by-step guide to get anyone started.

The scanner's features include a USB port for a thumb drive and two speeds. The accompanying software makes it easy to browse, scan, or print. Three skill levels means a user can start with simple functions and advance on to more elaborate functions. Three operating modes, simple, standard, and advanced, provide access to any and all software features, including the ability to crop, manipulate visual qualities, make annotations, save, and print. This is a fabulous upgrade to GFO's suite of research tools! Any Research Assistant working in the library should be able to give you an introductory orientation. So, next time you are in, make sure to try it out!

Liz Stepp, Loretta Welsh, and Cathy Lauer test drive the new scanner. A significant portion of the donation to purchase the scanner was in thanks to Cathy and Nedra Brill "for their dedicated volunteer work—giving hours of time to help other people."

Here are Some Gift Ideas for Any Occasion

Gifts from Genealogists

Turn your findings, artifacts, and stories into gifts for the family. You may know all the smallest details of your families' stories, but perhaps others in your family know only parts. Decide first if you want to use original materials, or have copies made. This might be the case with special or irreplaceable objects, or when you want to make the same gift for several people. Photographs of objects can substitute for real ones.

Charts, timelines, pedigree charts, and similar research findings in diagram form. These could be as simple as a digital file you find online and fill out, or hand-drawn and written charts, framed for hanging. There are many resources for these options online.

Make a display of your photos, postcards, maps, or other documents. Frame them singly, in a collage, or place in photo albums. Some themes might be a person's life story, a family line, a place, or one person's travels, Using good-quality copies will preserve the originals.

Write a story about a person or event, long or short. Add photos or other illustrations. Present it in a simple binding or have it professionally printed and bound.

Spend some time with a family member collecting memories and knowledge of their life or their family's lives. Record or write it down to give them to share with others.

Collect artifacts and make a shadow box.

Choose an event, a person's hobby or work tools, awards/medals, toys, or personal items. The background is a blank canvas to add photos or documents relevant to the subject.

Create an art or craft piece that reflects your family members and their history. Make a quilt, a painting, a song, boxes or other containers, or use any skill that you can turn into a special piece something for the next generation.

Gift Books from the GFO Surplus Books

On the surplus book sales shelves in the library, we have hundreds of basic genealogy books. You already have them? Maybe. Too old? Some. Too basic? Probably for you.

But what about your family and friends who come to you with basic questions? Or who don't use the Internet? Or those you would like to inspire to become more involved?

From old classic sources to new technology, for only $2 to $4, you can find many attractive items that would make great gifts.

And, as always, 100% of the revenue from surplus book sales goes to support the GFO.

Supporting the GFO While Shopping

Here's an easy way to contribute to the GFO with your purchases. There are two customer programs that will donate to the GFO when you specify our organization as your favorite.

As the holiday season approaches, consider joining one of these programs and give not just to your family and friends, but to your favorite genealogy group.

Be One in 100: Use your Fred Meyer Rewards Card to effortlessly increase GFO Donations!

Do you shop at Fred Meyer and have a Rewards Card? If so, with a couple of easy steps and a few minutes you could link your Rewards Card number to GFO and automatically cause a donation from Fred Meyer to GFO happen each time you shop!

If you strive like I do to be a smart shopper, linking your Rewards Card number can be a "win-win." For example, I use my Fred Meyer Rewards Card every time I shop there and use the accumulated "points" to get a discount on my gasoline fill-ups. Since I have a linked card, at the same time a cash donation is accumulating with each purchase, earmarked for GFO. And, linking in this way does not diminish or take away from any points or Reward rebate checks you would otherwise receive.

GFO gets these donations through Fred Meyer's "Community Rewards," which is the corporation's separate donation program. Currently, GFO has only about 10 members with linked cards participating. Together they generated over $30.00 in donations last quarter that will come directly to GFO.

Just think of what GFO could receive if 100 members linked their Fred Meyer Rewards Cards and continued to shop as usual: potentially $300 in donations per quarter, or well over $1,000 per year! With the many challenges that GFO faces, such donations would be most welcome, with the funds put to good use.

AmazonSmile

AmazonSmile is a program that rewards non-profit [501(c)(3)] organizations based on the customers' choice. The AmazonSmile Foundation donates 0.5% of the purchase price from eligible AmazonSmile products.

Access to the program is through the web page smile.amazon.com, but it's the same shopping experience and you can use your existing Amazon account. Sign up at smile.amazon.com and the site will remember the organization you have selected when you're shopping. We're listed as "Genealogical Forum of Oregon Inc"

The products will have "Eligible for AmazonSmile donation" on their detail pages. Only the purchase amount will qualify for the donation amount (no fees, charges, rebates, etc.)

To learn more, go to: http://smile.amazon.com/ about.

Tax Deduction

Your GFO membership fees are 100% tax deductible in keeping with our 501(c)(3) nonprofit status.

If you make a matching donation to the Oregon Cultural Trust, you may also be eligible for an Oregon tax credit: www.culturaltrust.org.

New Books at the Library

Here are some of the newest books added to our collection. The books in bold text were purchased with donor contributions. Check out the new books in our online catalog, or better yet, stop by the Library to see if they can answer any of your research questions.

For detailed instructions on using our catalog, please see the September 2015 issue of the Bulletin, page 25 or click here.

Focus on Local Archives, Part 1

In celebration of National Archives Month (October actually), a collection of archives representatives met with the public at the Portland Archives and Records Center. In addition to the opportunity to learn more about archives in the region, there was a tour of the archives, and examples of the holdings were on display. There are more archives listings to come in January.

Portland Archives and Records Center 1800 SW 6th Ave, Suite 550, Portland 503-865-4100

http://www.portlandoregon.gov/auditor/archives
Online Efiles database: http://www.portlandoregon.
gov/efiles

This archive stores records of the city's life since the earliest days. There are documents, maps (including a large collection of Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps), plans, and photographs from the city's bureaus and elected officials. A few of the holdings include: city council reports, correspondence, policies, bills for work performed for the city, police logs, and files covering urban planning, parks and recreation, land use, public works, and social issues.

Reseach or access is during working hours, or you can search the online database, Efiles. Not all records are digital, but contents of records are indexed – more all the time – and what is digital can be viewed online. Records that are accessed by researchers are scanned and added to the database.

Book Reviewers Needed

All the books on this list are available for review as of this writing, but we can't put them on the shelf until they have been reviewed.

They have been donated to the GFO by Genealogical.com on the condition that we review them in one of our publications. Writing a review is easy with a template that we can forward to anyone interested.

Evidence Explained: Citing History Sources from Artifacts to Cyberspace, third edition, Elizabeth Shown Mills, 892 pages, 2015.

QuickSheet: Citing Genetic Sources for History Research, Evidence! Style, Elizabeth Shown Mills, 4 pages, 2015.

Manitoba Scrip, second edition, compiled by Gail Morin, 332 pages, 2015. (Scrip was either land or money given to people of European and Native Canadian heritage.)

Northwest Half-Breed Scrip, 1885, revised edition, compiled by Gail Morin, 287 pages, 2015.

We'd like to get these books on the shelves for patrons, and we want to keep the flow of free books coming. Won't you please review a book or two? Contact bookreviews@gfo.org
